the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems in the UK is estimated to be 10% (Mental Health Foundation 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for mental health care, which aims to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The strategy is based on the following principles:

- People with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes.
- People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care.
- People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in the community.

The strategy also aims to improve the lives of people with mental health problems by addressing the following issues:

- Improving the quality of care.
- Improving the access to care.
- Improving the support for carers.

Weather Or Not

Through sleet, snow, rain and cold, the mail is still delivered. The weather can't stop the mail but it can postpone classes. It doesn't deflate our spirit for we achieve a great deal in academics, in sports, in vocational training and in the simple pleasures of life.

Summer is a time for rebuilding—structurally and mentally. Warm temperatures and sunny skies were perfect for repair work on the building this summer.

Fall brought the beginning of a new school year, brilliant colors, and fog delays. School spirit soared as the football team had its best season in eight years.

Warm temperatures made winter seem more like spring and found us longing for snow days but settling for a "plumbing day" instead.

Spring fever at Lowell meant Prom, Graduation and leaky roofs. It was also a time set aside to recognize students for their achievements during the school year.

We were inconvenienced by the weather but we achieved a great deal to be proud of. We graduated another class; we won another game; we had another theatrical success; we survived—weather or not.

Summer Refreshes LHS Spirit

No more snow or rain. No more leaky roofs or holes in the carpeting. No more tests or homework. It had to mean SUMMER VACATION!

The weather couldn't have been kinder to Lowell students. Balmey breezes and cloudless days meant plenty of time for swimming or tennis or vacationing. Many of our students took time this summer to visit the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tennessee or to attend workshops.

Inside, Lowell was spruced up. Leaks in the roof were ready to be patched after the spring rains. The carpeting in the North Commons and the junior-senior locker bay was replaced, giving the area a fresh appearance.

The summer weather did most in helping Lowell rebuild its spirit and energy for a new school year. Even in the summer, Lowell students did their best to relax, rejuvenate and to grow—weather or not.

Athletic Director Don Bales worked this summer on scheduling and preparing Lowell for fall athletic events.

Lowell Red Devils began conditioning and practice in August for their first game, Football-O-Rama.

Games of chance and food booths are points of interest at the Lake County Fair.

A popular spot any summer is the beach at Lake Michigan.

Work, Fun Compose Summer Activities

Summer activities made vacation time go by quickly but with the memories of good times.

A few students attended workshops at various universities to further their interests in a particular field. Lindsey Bryant and Lenore Spencer attended journalism workshops at Indiana University and Dianne Wleklinski participated in a yearbook seminar at Bryan College in Tennessee.

Athletes kept in shape with summer training. Football, Cross Country, Volleyball, Boys' Tennis and Girls' Swimming began conditioning in late summer to prepare them for their seasons in the fall.

Vacation trips to the World's Fair and Disneyworld were popular. Mrs. Nancy Mills and Mrs. Nancy Carter, foreign language teachers, spent their summer traveling and studying in Europe. For those staying at home, the Lake County Fair in August was work and fun.

Whatever activities LHS students chose, they had a good time and stored up memories to keep them warm in the winter and to see them through the long school year ahead.

As part of pre-season football practice, Griedette Dawn Everett readied equipment for the players.

Summer football practice prepared Coaches Lorig and Bailey for a season of hard work and strategy.

Summer—In The News

Beginnings, final performances and unexpected visitors—this was the summer of 1982.

Prince William Arthur Phillip Louis of Wales made his world debut; proud parents were Princess Diana and Prince Charles of England.

The war in the Falkland Islands ended during the summer with England emerging as the victor, reclaiming its own territory.

The United States continued efforts to negotiate a settlement in embattled Lebanon between the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO).

U.S. Cable and the town of Lowell made cable television available to town residents. Music Television on Channel 12 was a popular pastime for LHS students.

In sports, Jimmy Connors won the Wimbledon title despite persistent rain which often delayed play.

With beginnings came endings. Henry Fonda died in August after winning an Oscar for his performance in "On Golden Pond" earlier in the year.

E.T. visited the towns and stole the hearts of millions. Steven Spielberg had his best summer with "E.T." and "Poltergeist" being number one favorites on most movie-goers' lists.

A summer of newness and emotional endings added spice to our lives.

Players and spectators at Wimbledon often had to run for cover because of the rain

LHS Goes Fresh in Fall

The smell of burning leaves and a crispness in the air let everyone know summer was over and fall had arrived.

Homecoming kept athletes, clubs and members of every class busy. Spirit Week competition brought out the "spirit" in us all, especially the juniors.

The Red Devil Varsity Football Team won its Homecoming game against Calumet. It was the first Homecoming win in nine years. The Girls' Volleyball Team won the honor of being the winningest team Lowell had ever had.

The LHS Theatre Department opened its season with a musical, GREASE, and took all of us back to the rock and roll era of the 1950's.

The newness of the school year meant a fresh start in learning, in sports competition and in various school activities—weather or not.

Pageant Shifts Emphasis

On September 26, Darla Snell was selected Lowell's 1983 Junior Miss. She was also awarded Judges' Conference Award and the Performing Talent Award.

Other awards presented at the afternoon event were Melissa Burgess, Youth Fitness Award and first runner-up; Colleen Swisher, Poise and Appearance and second runner-up; Cindy Stavem, Creative Talent Award; and Theresa Lynn Brown, Spirit of Junior Miss Award.

As Lowell's representative, Darla went on to state competition where she won the Youth Fitness Award on the preliminary night of competition.

Lowell's Junior Miss program is sponsored by the Lowell Chamber of Commerce with Miss Pat McAllister as co-ordinator.

Looks in the competition aren't everything. To become Lowell's Junior Miss, a girl needs scholastic ability, talent, fitness, poise and charm.

Miss McAllister commented, "This year they went from crowns and flowers to medallions as awards. They did this so it wouldn't look like a beauty pageant anymore because it's definitely a scholastic program. It's not a pageant anymore; it's a Junior Miss Program."

The Physical Fitness routine has all the girls "working out" to music while learning

Junior Miss contestants must perform some original talent in the competition and Julie Schrum chose a ballet interpretation.

Each contestant is introduced to the judges individually with a curtsy and bow. Here Julie Schrum and Jane Richardson are presented.

new dance steps and routines they must perform together.

The winners in the major areas received medallions instead of crowns so the competition would less resemble a beauty pageant.

WE WON! WE WON! WE WON!

October 1, Homecoming, was special for Lowell High School athletes, students and alumni who witnessed the first Homecoming win in nine years for Lowell. The 29-0 victory over Calumet was presided over by Homecoming Queen Colleen Swisher and celebrated that night at the Homecoming Dance.

In game action, Calumet didn't stand a chance against performances by Ted Hansen and Steve Kerr. Spirit ran high among team members. That, matched with the Wishbone strategy, and Calumet was a loser from the first kick-off. The Homecoming win also marked the first time in 15 years that Lowell had won three games in a row.

Half-time activities included a band performance along with the presentation of the Homecoming

Court and Queen, Colleen Swisher. Rod Robison, her escort, was also presented as Homecoming King.

Sponsored by Student Council, the Homecoming Dance after the game spotlighted the Queen and her court. It turned out to be a well-deserved victory celebration for the Red Devils.

Calumet couldn't stop the Red Devil spirit and went down to defeat without ever scoring.

Coach Lorig's Wishbone strategy held for Homecoming, marking three wins in a row for Lowell.

Besides leading the cheers at the game, the cheerleaders organized the Spirit Week competition for the Spirit Stick award.

Homecoming Queen Colleen Swisher was chosen during half-time activities; Rod Robison, Homecoming King, reigned over Powder Puff activities.

Steve Kerr was able to stop Calumet's many attempts to score against Lowell.

Darla Snell led her Powder Puff team to a 6-0 victory over the Freshman/Sophomore team.

Rob Robison was chosen as Homecoming King at the Powder Puff game.

Red Devils Cry: Smurf A Warrior!

A Homecoming victory over Calumet was the icing on the cake after a round of activities during Spirit Week which raised Lowell's spirits and hopes.

Competition for the Spirit Stick pitted classes against each other in hall decoration, link sales and dress-up days. The winner was the Junior Class. Clubs tried to beat out one another in float competition and window decorations. Industrial Ed. Club edged out VICA with the first prize float of "Smurf the Warriors".

Activities for Spirit Week became more competitive with the annual Homecoming Powder Puff game and a face-off between the Freshman/Sophomore team and the Junior/Senior team. From that battle, sponsored by the Junior Class, the Junior/Senior team emerged the winner.

A pep session Friday afternoon had the student body fired up to burn the Calumet Warriors that night. The 29-0 victory was the perfect finish to a "spirited" week.

Pete Artim puts the finishing touches on VICA's second place float, "Burn the Warriors".

Industrial Ed Club's winning float carried the theme "Smurf the Warriors"

Mike Huseman and Ted Hansen do their part for School Colors Day.

The Junior/Senior Powder Puff cheerleaders rooted their team on to victory.

"We are number one," was the Junior/Senior team's battle cry.

GREASE Rocks LHS

The first theatre production this year was a musical, GREASE. With director, Mrs. Debra Ciochina and costume designer, Mr. Tom Sufana, players recreated Rydell High School of the 1950's.

Producing another theatrical success didn't happen without problems. Auditions had to be rescheduled because scripts were late in arriving. Tryouts brought out so many candidates, they took two nights.

There were many new faces in lead roles such as Diana Reeder (Sandy) and Ben Ruley (Danny). For sophomores Carolyn Blank and Kelly Mathias, this was their first major part.

"It was neat how everyone in the cast got along off stage like they did on stage," commented Carolyn who played Pink Lady, Rizzo.

Cha-Cha (Teresa Redman) and Danny (Ben Ruley) had the right moves to win Rydell High's dance contest.

As Doody, Kirk Redman sings for the Pink Ladies and the T-Birds.

Jim Dunn has entertained Lowell audiences with his talent as characters like Eugene.

Sandy tells the Pink Ladies about her summer romance with Danny.

Marty (Anne Bruce) impresses the other Pink Ladies at her slumber party with stories about her older boyfriend.

Kelly Mathias as Jan and Jeff Walker as Roger found they had much in common, like food.

To win Danny (Ben Raley), Sandy (Diana Reeder) changed her "Sandra Dee" image.

To Suit Your Tastes—

It was the "Year of the Convocations". In addition to pep sessions during football and basketball seasons, Lowell students had the chance to be a part of four different assembly programs during the school day.

In the fall, the physical education department sponsored a weightlifting exhibition featuring a champion weightlifter. Students and faculty were part of the program as volunteer "weights" for the lifts.

During the winter, the wrestling teams of Lowell and Rensselaer showed their muscles in an exhibition match with Lowell defeating Rensselaer, 40-24.

For entertainment, the Ball

State University Choir made Lowell one of its stops on their tour. In the spring, Student Council sponsored a multi-screen film with pop music background.

Whatever your interests, from sports to music, there was a convocation for you!

It isn't hard to fill the stands for a convocation held during the school day.

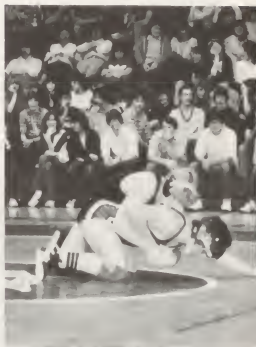

The Ball State University Choir entertained with music, songs and dance.

Pep sessions for Homecoming and Basketball Sectionals were possible with the help of the cheerleaders and their sponsor, Miss Black.

For many students, the wrestling convo was their first look at a wrestling match.

CONVOICATIONS!

Audience participation made the weightlifting convo even more entertaining.

Wishbone Brings Good Luck

Lowell's 1982 Football Team could be said to have had their most successful season in nine years. In fact, it was the first time in 12 years they had won three games in a row and the first time in nine years Lowell had seen a Homecoming victory. The team as a whole had over 1000 yards rushing and they scored more points in one game, against River Forest, than any other LHS football team had in the past nine years. They finished their season 5-5.

Much of this success can be attributed to the new Wishbone Offense and the coaching staff. Coach Joe Lorig had seen different teams running the Wishbone ever since he was in college in 1970 and Coach Jim Goetz had played Wishbone in high school.

"It seemed that every team that I ever saw who ran the Wishbone tended to move the ball more effectively," Coach Lorig explained. "Looking at it from a defensive point of view, I hadn't ever been with a team that was very successful at stopping it."

Training started late last season and during the summer, team members attended a Wishbone Camp in Wisconsin.

The Wishbone Offense seemed to be the key to what was a year of firsts for the Red Devils.

Gridettes Help

The Gridettes have been a part of Lowell's football scene for some time but these girls aren't always recognized for what they do.

Gridettes are responsible for setting up the field for practice and games. During games, they are in charge of setting up and putting away the phones the coaches use and taking care of equipment. They also help with injured players.

The girls work in the background but without them, where would the Red Devils be?

Gridette Cindy Oberc has been working with the team for two years.

Even Record A Struggle

This year's Junior Varsity Team displayed flexibility and teamwork. Although practice time was limited because of preparation for the varsity games, the boys successfully adapted to their schedule and saw the season through to a 5-5 finish.

There were many obstacles in their path. Since many of the boys played a varsity game on Friday night as well as JV, the team's strength early Saturday morning was often diminished. By pulling together as a team, they gave their opponents more than a little competition. Using the word "ambitious" to describe these boys, Coach Chuck Naumowich felt they would contribute much experience to next year's varsity lineup. Assisting Coach Naumowich was Coach Tom Renn.

This year not much attention from students was given to the JV games. Next year, games will be scheduled on week nights and perhaps this change will bring more student support.

Freshmen Learn Dedication

"It's important to realize that success can't always be measured by wins or losses," said Coach Rich Bailey regarding the Freshmen Football Team's record of 0-9.

"We had a lot of inexperienced players on the team who didn't really know what it meant to play high school football or how to dedicate themselves to anything," explained Coach Bailey.

By the end of the season, they were not only more skilled in the fundamentals of football, but they also had better mental attitudes as well.

The last two games of the season were the best.

"We were in a position to win because we had a good mental attitude and had finally decided to work," said Bailey.

In the last game against Griffith, the team scored 26 points and could have put the game into regulation overtime. While they finally lost the game, they themselves had become winners.

In the last game against Griffith, it seemed the Freshmen had gotten it all together and scored 26 points.

With a 19-7 season, the Varsity Volleyball Team was the winningest team Lowell had ever seen. Despite their weaknesses in passing and the lack of pre-season training, the team finished second in the conference with a 4-2 record. Team play and depth in positions led them to this outstanding season.

"It was a very successful season in terms of wins and losses," commented Coach Cathy Nelson.

Defeating Hebron, a Semi-State finalist, in three games was a highlight of the season. A real disappointment was losing to Calumet in the second round of Sectionals. This helped take Calumet to Semi-State competition.

The girls trained on their own during the summer, yet their season was no worse for it.

As a review of the season, Coach Nelson said, "It's a real credit to the girls who worked during the summer to perfect their skills and improve their overall team play."

Included on the Varsity this year were two freshmen, Shelley Paquette and Denise Wieklinski.

Depth in position, shown by Kathy Huke at the net, placed the team second in conference.

Inconsistency Plagues JV

This year's JV volleyball team was a very winning team with a record of 14-8.

During the season two girls quit, but the rest of the team pulled together when this happened.

Their weak point as a team was not being able to play consistently throughout the match.

Team positions and players were: servers, Michelle Bafia, Susan Green, and Becky Polihronis; setters, Kim Felder, Susan Sykes, and Cindy Skorka; spiker, Bridget Spaw; defensive players, Michelle Baker, and Carla Shipley.

Weight training, vigorous sprints, running a mile under eight minutes, and diving drills were some of the training the girls completed.

Becky Polihronis' spike slips past Calu-met's attempt to return the ball.

Runners Surprise Thomas

After four senior Cross Country runners graduated last year, Coach Bob Thomas was not too optimistic.

"I didn't expect the team to do as well as they did. They were a fantastic team; they worked hard."

The Cross Country team proved they were better than they looked by posting a 14-8 season record. According to Coach Thomas, the freshmen joining the team were the best this school had seen since he had been here.

The most valuable runner for this year was senior, Tim Rigg. Ray Rosachi, a transfer student from Griffith, was the most improved runner.

Training for the Cross Country Team started on June 1, with practices once a week. By July, they were practicing twice a week. In August, the team was up to daily practices.

August training had the team concentrating on distance running, averaging 10 miles a day. The team camped out and practiced at the Indiana Dunes.

Veterans on the team like Steve Feddeler and the incoming freshmen did better than Coach Thomas expected.

How would you like to be the only girl on an all boy Cross Country team? It wouldn't be easy. That's for sure, but junior Jennifer Zukley did fine.

"Everything worked out real nice," said Coach Bob Thomas.

"The guys would tease her and all because she was a girl, but mostly they just treated Jenn normally."

"It was an experience I'll never forget," commented Jennifer Zukley who finished thirteenth with an average of 12.13.

All right girls! Hurry and get out there and show those guys what you can do!

As Coach Thomas said, "I would like more girls on the team; maybe we could start an all girl team."

Pre-season training for Steve Mayer was distance running averaging 10 miles per day.

The Cross Country season is a strenuous one for team member Rick Williams for it begins early in the summer.

Times Improve

Keeping 20 girls working together is not easy task; just ask Mr. George Bader, Girls' Swimming Coach. Yet, that is what he identified as the team's strongest area—their teamwork.

A major goal the girls set for themselves was to do well in Sectionals. To boost their spirit, they sponsored a Swim-a-Thon to earn money for new suits and shorts. Their team work resulted in the new suits and most swimmers improved their own times at Sectionals.

Several times during the season, Jenni Korte broke her own record and a school record in diving.

The team posted a record of 4-12 but individual scores and achievements highlighted the season. In diving, Lynette Burchell captured third place which earned her a spot in State competition. The Most Valuable swimmer was Becky James.

The girls credited their success in part to Coach Bader and Assistant Coach, Mrs. Beth Wisch.

"We all worked really hard to improve. The one who worked the hardest was Mr. Bader," commented Lindsey Bryant.

Netters at a Disadvantage

"Nice guys finish last," said Coach Jeff Dhonau in explanation of the 2-17 record of the Boys' Tennis Team.

The season record may not have been impressive but finishing fourth in the semi-finals for this Lowell team was.

"We started practice in August because most of the players spent their summer in individual training though they needed more work as a team," stated Dhonau.

The team was outplayed by their opponents because Lowell players could only practice outdoors while some of the other schools were near indoor facilities.

Another problem the team had was locating the matches. The Bishop Noll game was moved from the high school to an elementary school which the Lowell team was unaware of.

Planning to recruit more freshmen and "to keep the good players in winter mothballs and spring them on the suburbs" is part of Coach Dhonau's strategy for next year.

One of the first chances team members had to practice together was at the start of the regular playing season.

Randy McFarlane faced stiff competition from opponents who had the advantage of practicing indoors during the off-season.

Fall—In the News

While Lowell students were busy with their own interests and the start of another school year, news was being made around them.

In October, seven people in the Chicago area died after taking cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules. The medication was immediately recalled from the shelves, even in Lowell.

The Columbia space shuttle completed its fifth mission. The controversial Viet Nam war memorial was dedicated in Washington, D.C.; Epcot Center, Walt Disney's new theme park, opened in Florida.

In sports, the World Series was won by the St. Louis Cardinals.

The National Football League players continued their strike over money issues.

The new fall television season featured adventure shows like "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and comedies like "Cheers".

Death took several prominent personalities. In September, actress Ingrid Bergman and Princess Grace of Monaco died. Leonid Brezhnev, leader of the Russian Communist Party died in November to be replaced by Yuri Andropov.

A new school year, even though news for Lowell, was overshadowed by events in the world around us.

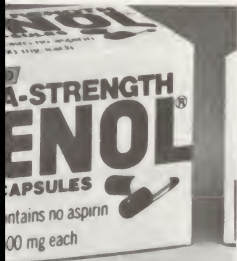

When Tylenol finally reappeared on store shelves, it was safety sealed three ways.

WORKED HARD TO

Brezhnev's final public appearance was in Moscow three days before his death.

Hard Work Goes Unseen

The hard work of boosting school spirit falls to the cheerleaders whose work often goes unnoticed.

"The cheerleaders do a great deal of work behind the scenes," said Ms. Wendy Black, sponsor.

This year the squads opened up the sports season with a Football Picnic. During the year, they organized the traditional Spirit Week for Homecoming and Basketball Sectionals.

For the community, the girls sponsored a Parents' Night for the senior members of the football and basketball teams and provided a cheerleading clinic during the summer.

The cheerleaders were rewarded for their dedication with the Freshman and Varsity Squads qualifying for the national championships in cheerleading.

Angie Williamson and Sheret Lindsay qualified for the national championships in cheerleading as part of the Freshman Squad.

Besides pep sessions, the girls provide dinners, senior athlete pictures, signs and locker decorations to boost team and school spirit.

Pep sessions were organized by all the cheerleaders as part of their service to the athletics program at Lowell.

In addition to the service work the girls do, they must attend all practices and games, raise funds for uniforms and present a positive image. At a practice session, Ms. Black, Colleen Swisher and Diana Reeder finalize fund-raising plans.

Club Saves Fans Money

The Football Pep Club's motto this year was, "Join us and save money."

Pep Club members paid $20.00 and got transportation to all away games, free admission to all games and the chance to attend all pep sessions held during the school day.

There was not a big response from the student body at the beginning of the football season.

Only 30 students were members but as the season continued, more people signed up for fan buses to the games. The reason, according to Ms. Wendy Black, sponsor, was the well-played season.

"When we played Crown Point," said Ms. Black, "there were two buses going to the game, where usually there is only one bus to away football games."

Before home games, cheerleaders and club members welcome the team onto the field and boost their spirits.

Squads Add to Band Shows

This school year meant a new start for the Lowell Pom Pons. Considering the organization was a fairly new one, much work had to be done. Stricter rules and new goals helped to make this year's program more successful. The new rules, including grade requirements and mandatory attendance, eliminated those who were not as dedicated and cleared the way for those who were.

Routines for the Poms were made up by the girls themselves. The Poms used tapes of popular tunes instead of band music which allowed them to include more dance in their routines.

"I was generally pleased with the performance of the girls," commented Mr. Joe Vacaro, sponsor.

Assisting Mr. Vacaro as sponsor was Mrs. Cermack.

The Flags worked in conjunction with the band and the Pom squad. With the help of sponsor, Mr. Vacaro, the girls perfected routines to be used as part of half-time band entertainment at football games. Their costumes and moves added color and spirit to the show.

During half-time at football games, the Poms performed dance routines with the band to entertain the fans.

Money Woes Force Changes

It was almost a miracle that a LOWELLIAN was produced this year. With a very small and inexperienced staff, a shortage of work time and rising costs, the yearbook staff this year went through a real crisis and changes are evident.

The staff moved to a later delivery date in the fall which gave them more time to work since they really only had after-school hours to do the writing, page designing and picture taking involved.

Despite the problems, the cost of the yearbook remained the same. The cost of producing the 1983 LOWELLIAN was approximately $12,000, yet students could still prpurchase one in the first sale campaign for $14.00.

"Besides paying for this year's book, we are still paying off debts from past years. This year we had to make some cost-cutting changes in the book," said Ms. Carey, advisor.

Since book sales were down this year, staffers sold more ads during the summer to cover costs. Besides a larger advertisement section in the book, there is a seasonal theme, a new cover design by Mr. Sufana, the return to a Hall of Fame page for the seniors and sports score blocks for each sport.

One of the first jobs for new editor, Dianne Wleklinski, was to examine the shipment of 1982 yearbooks.

Smaller Tree for Commons

A visit to the Art Institute in Chicago, lunch and shopping have become a tradition with the Art Guild and one of its most rewarding events since many students have never been to the Art Institute or even to Chicago. Again this year the trip was planned for fall recess with lunch at Marshall Field's.

Another Art Guild tradition has been the purchasing and decorating of a Christmas tree for the North Commons. A shortage of funds this year forced the group to buy a much smaller tree than in past years. But the hand-made decorations by the art classes and Art Guild helped to make up for the lack of height. Next year, the group plans to collect donations from student organizations, who ultimately benefit from the project, to offset the costs.

The decorations, as well as the scene under the Christmas tree, was made by Art Guild and classes in the Art Department.

One of Mrs. Hurt's tasks was to co-ordinate Elfies and interested faculty members.

For the senior members of FEA, the Teacher Breakfast was their last activity. Members entertained the faculty with home-made cakes and orange juice.

FEA Hosts Pre-Schoolers

It's rare that a club activity can appeal to high school students, pre-school children and parents all at the same time, but FEA's Pre-School Christmas Party provided entertainment and service to children and parents.

"The girls enjoyed the pre-school children and the children had a good time. The mothers liked the 'time off' too," said Mrs. Margaret Hurt, sponsor.

"Teacher for a Day" again gave FEA members a chance to gain a better insight into the teaching career from the "other side of the desk" as teachers, not students.

Complete group participation was an obstacle to achieving certain goals but many girls again volunteered to be Elfies for the faculty. With the group's final activity, the Teacher Breakfast, grateful faculty members met their secret pals for the past year and got a chance to return the favor.

Inductees Plan on College

National Honor Society inducted 33 new members this year in their traditional formal candlelight ceremony. Foreign exchange students, Elisabeth Egeland and Tom Immonen, were inducted as honorary members of the Lowell chapter.

These junior and senior students were chosen on the basis of their cumulative grade point average of 3.5 and the qualities of leadership, service and character.

A survey of the inductees revealed that, on the average, a NHS member studies one to two hours for a test; feels physics is his hardest class; plans on attending college; and would like to major in science or math.

Each member at the induction ceremony recites the Honor Society creed which states, "(the purpose) is to spread the light of knowledge throughout the world." Lowell's chapter has already begun that mission.

Dr. Luekens welcomed Elisabeth Egeland and Tom Immonen as honorary members of the Lowell chapter.

As part of the formal candlelight induction ceremony, Honor Society members light candles to symbolize leadership, service and character.

Winter Is No Wonderland

We looked to winter for snow days but we were disappointed. An unseasonably mild winter kept buses running and school open. The only break came in January when a broken water pipe cancelled classes for the day.

The winter sports season was no disappointment, however. Athletic talent in wrestling and gymnastics brought honors to Lowell in State competition.

Winter activities like THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16 and the Christmas Dance kept our minds off of winter temperatures in the 50's.

We may have felt cheated with no snow vacations but we never let it show. Sports brought out school spirit; activities brought out school involvement; daily attendance brought out our best academically. We worked without a rest—weather or not.

Jill Schlueter as Mrs. Hutchins testified that Karen Andre was with Bjorn on the night he died.

Karen Andre (Lindsey Bryant) confronts Bjorn Faulkner's widow with the news that he never loved her and married her for money.

Audiences Act in Drama

Did Karen Andre push Bjorn Faulkner off the top of the Faulkner Building?

This was the question posed by Lowell Theatre Art's production of THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16. It was the first time in many years a drama had been presented and it meant a smaller cast and more demanding roles.

The action was centered around a murder trial. Witnesses, played by cast members, were seated in the audience while selected audience members served as jurors and decided the fate of the accused.

Lindsey Bryant, playing the part of the accused murderess in her first major role on the LHS stage said, "This cast was smaller and you could see the characters develop. This type of play was such a challenge that we all had to work 100% every night."

Another first for the group of characters was being reviewed by the Hammond Times, the first time the paper had ever reviewed a high school production.

And the answer to the opening question, according to three of four Lowell juries selected—not guilty!

For senior, Jeff Walker, the dramatic production marked the end of his LHS theatre career.

Tom Gunning tested his dramatic skills with the demanding role of the prosecuting attorney, Mr. Flint.

The image of the accused as being a worldly, evil woman was presented on the stand by the maid, Magda (Gina Eich).

Nancy Lee Faulkner, Bjorn's widow, was a loving wife played convincingly by Anne Bruce.

Behind the scenes, Mr. Tom Sufana worked with Mrs. Ciochina as costume and set designer. Here he helps Robert Brunner prepare for dress rehearsal.

The Boys' Varsity Basketball Team's record of 7-14 reflects the inexperience of the team, not its talent.

There were only two returning lettermen this year. One of them was senior Mike Johnson, the team's Most Valuable Player, whose season record of 311 points and 173 rebounds helped defeat a tough opponent like Griffith. Four underclassmen, one of them Chris Laszlo, a junior who scored 200 points and 144 rebounds, started this year. Mike Cash, a freshman, also showed much promise for the team's future. Sophomore Kyle Antcliff was chosen as the most improved player.

Coach Steve Leonard, in his second year as varsity coach, remarked, "No season is the best it could be unless you win the state championship. This season was fairly successful for our lack of experience."

Coach Leonard viewed his job this year as more than just wins and losses. A highlight of the season was the 59-56 win over Griffith. The team shot 64% from the field and 90% from the free throw line.

Kyle Antcliff (14), the Most Improved choice, will be one of the seven returning lettermen next year.

Chris Laszlo (54) was one of the underclassmen starters who scored well in rebounds.

Coach Leonard listed co-operation among team members as a help in achieving team goals this year.

Frosh Play for Fun, Wins

A 12-7 season record serves as a partial tribute to the Freshman Boys' Basketball Team's skill as basketball players.

Versatility seemed to be the key to their success. A strong transition offense defeated conference opponent, Crown Point, 40-33. This victory also helped put together a stretch of three conference wins in a row. As a team, their passing skills and their ability to get scoring from several different players made up for their weakness in team defense.

As a final tribute to the team, Coach Don Bales said, "This group is successful because they play year 'round for fun. They know how to win and what needs to be done in order to win."

Time Improves Young Team

Dedication, determination and teamwork may not have shown in the number of victories for the Girls' Varsity Basketball Team, but Coach Cheryl Mitchell was pleased with the way the team improved and progressed throughout the season.

Inexperience plagued the team and contributed to many mental errors which cost wins. A loss to KV in a very close game and an intense game against Lake Station in Sectionals showed the girls' determination but lack of playing experience. Lowell lost to Lake Station by only five points after having been behind by as many as 18 points.

While the team's strength was in its ability to work together, individual defense and ball handling also kept the season record to 4-15.

"We did not have many good ball handlers and we lacked players with fundamental basketball skills," said Coach Mitchell.

Outstanding players were Kathy Huke as Most Valuable and Deb Kersey, a freshman who was given honorable mention on the Lake Suburban Conference Team. Most Improved was Michelle Bafia. Team captains were Kathy Huke and Sarah Hotler.

Co-captain Kathy Huke brought experience and talent to an otherwise inexperienced varsity team. They faced tough competition in the Lake Suburban Conference.

Teamwork Brings Last Win

The Junior Varsity Girls' Basketball season was a learning experience for team members.

The girls needed to learn not only basketball fundamentals but also how to perform and act as a team. According to Coach Steve Schwanke, this finally happened with the last game and a victory over North Newton.

"The last four games we really started putting everything together. I feel that our last game showed how much we had improved," said Coach Schwanke.

The team posted a 1-15 record due to weak shooting and injuries. But with a strong defense, the girls were able to hold their opponents to low scores.

Coach Schwanke commented, "I really believe our team was better than its record. It should be a credit to the girls for never giving up. We were very young and inexperienced, yet we played our opponents very tough."

Next year, the girls are looking for revenge for their losses.

It took the team most of the season to learn to work together and to put to use their strong defensive play.

In a scrimmage game, the JV team got much needed practice in shooting.

Swimmers First at KV

Mark Broe's butterfly stroke helped put Lowell in first place at KV, a first for Lowell.

A small, but strong Boys' Swimming Team gave Lowell its first ever at the Kankakee Valley Invitational and a second at the Calumet Invitational this year. Considering the competition from area teams is so tough, this was a major accomplishment for the group.

Coach George Bader said, "(Turn-out for the team was) good but we do need more boys. The few people we had were strong. If you can stay with the workout, you stay on the team."

Workouts were before and after school from October to February. Team captains, Howard Whybrew and Kurt Kintzel, led the swimmers to a 10-8 season. Greg Schmidt took honors as the Most Valuable and Howard Whybrew was the Most Improved swimmer.

Rebuilding the team after losing five seniors is Bader's goal for next season. While this year's team was small in number, it made up for it in a unified team effort.

An experienced and dedicated Gymnastics Team made Lowell a serious competitor with Patti Erb and Colette Searle qualifying for Regionals and Colette advancing to State, a first for Lowell since 1973.

The Intermediate Team set a new school record for most team points with a 103 point win over Hobart. They finished with a sea-

The Optional Team was plagued with many unexpected injuries and had to compete short-handed. Their best performance was also against Hobart.

Experience and devotion brought outstanding performances on the balance beam for the Optional Team and in vaulting for the Intermediate Team. Winning individual performances were turned in by Patti Erb who qualified for Regionals on the uneven bars and by Colette Searle. Colette, also voted the Most Valuable Player, competed at State in all-around events and beam. Most Improved was Kelly Roseberry.

A Young Sport At LHS

by Mrs. Wilma Hardesty

Girls from Lowell High School have been involved in gymnastics competition since 1965 when the first state G.A.A. (Girls' Athletic Association) gymnastics meet was held.

In 1970, a team of 10 girls was organized from Lowell to compete against other schools in the area.

From 1965 to 1970, State meets were held at Ball State University. In 1970, G.A.A. district meets were organized with Lowell hosting for its district.

G.A.A. disbanded in 1973 and girls' gymnastics became part of the IHSAA. In that year, Susan McLellan represented Lowell at State and won the first Mental Attitude Award ever presented in girls' gymnastics.

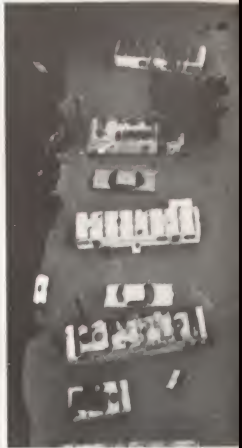

Colette is the sixth gymnast from Lowell to place in State since 1966.

Freshman Joan Searle seems to be continuing the family tradition of excellence in gymnastics.

Winter— In the News

Locally and nationally, the weather made the major winter news. In the Midwest, temperatures were in the 50's while the West suffered through rain storms and mudslides.

The news was as unsettling as the weather. In December, Norman Mayer, an anti-nuclear advocate, held the Washington Monument hostage. James Lewis, a prime suspect in the Tylenol poisoning case, was captured in New York.

The National Football League strike finally ended in time for Super Bowl XVII in which the Washington Redskins defeated the Miami Dolphins, 27-17. Bjorn Borg, five-time Wimbledon winner, announced his retirement from tennis at age 26.

Movies and television mini-series chased away winter boredom. "Tootsie", "Sophie's Choice" and "Ghandi" premiered in movie theatres. "The Winds of War" and "Nicholas Nickleby" kept television viewers at home for nights at a time.

Barney Clark made medical history when he received the first permanent artificial heart. Karen Carpenter, lead singer of the Carpenters, died at 32 from anorexia nervosa.

Finally, this winter didn't leave us buried in snow and that was news!

According to Mr. Dhonau, "The planning (for the Blood Drive) was a serious commitment on the part of some Council members," and LHS students like Vicki Weiland.

Committment Missing

Homecoming Dance, Christmas Dance, Blood Drive, MORP and class elections were the activities sponsored by the Student Council. However, from the viewpoint of its sponsor, Mr. Jeff Dhonau and a few conscientious members, these events, except for the Blood Drive, were disappointing.

"There is no high level of commitment on the part of most Council members. Without this, every project becomes a chore for the few dedicated members," said Mr. Dhonau.

The goal for the Blood Drive was 90 units but 124 units were drawn with 73 new donors participating.

A new activity for the group was MORP with its theme, "Back Alley Blues" and scheduled right before the excitement of Prom.

Club Bids Bon Voyage!

ing of the opera, "Carmen".

"Our most exciting event was definitely our trip to Canada and our activities in Quebec City. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed our cultural and social activities," commented Mrs. Nancy Carter, sponsor.

French Club also provided community service with its donating of funds to the Marion Hupp Cancer Fund. The club contributed to Jodi Vandenberg's summer trip to France in the Indiana University Honors Program.

Grease—Not the Only Word

While students in automotive technology spend a lot of time studying how cars run and working on various vehicles, they do get a chance to have some fun.

Mr. Norbert Blanchard, sponsor, was shooting for complete participation on projects and he almost reached his goal. The annual ski trip to Cannonsburg, Michigan was a success because of club support. A favorite and most popular activity was the Off-Road Rally.

"There was a good response this year compared to last year," reported Mr. Blanchard.

To raise money for their various activities, members sold citrus fruit and sponsored another successful Tool Box Raffle.

VICA members also fared well in skill competition. Dave Derr finished fourth highest in the Regional Skill Olympics; Dave and Rich Rish finished first in the State VICA contest in Terre Haute.

"Grease" was more than the word for VICA this year.

As part of automotive training, students Rick Hoehn and Mike Manes get on-the-job training maintaining and servicing cars.

VICA member, Doug Adams, learned how to take apart an engine and put it back together.

FFA members rewarded themselves for a year of hard work with a fishing trip to Canada.

More Than Farming Learned

"FFA is not just for farmers," said Mr. Richard Bailey, director of the Lowell chapter of Future Farmers of America. "FFA is for anyone interested in management leadership, and of course, farming," continued Mr. Bailey.

Through FFA, students received hands-on-training in managing a farm in the areas of machinery, money management and livestock.

Many members competed during the year in leadership contests, speeches and farming demonstrations. Todd Hayden earned a first in District Competition for his demonstration of farm mechanics and president, Don Hulse, was voted Hoosier State Farmer, FFA's second highest award.

FFA members also farmed a few of their own acres and used the profits for community and recreational projects. They competed in a Tractor Trouble Shooting Contest and various livestock and soil judging competitions.

FFA was designed to promote educational farming and the Lowell chapter fulfilled its obligation.

News/Magazine Style Used

After an absence of several months, the DEVILS' ADVOCATE appeared in the spring with the new look of a news/magazine. The change in format meant more features and in-depth stories and an increased price of 25¢. The new format was a smaller magazine size and featured a new cover design with ads appearing on the inside of the covers.

"I learned about this style at a journalism workshop last summer," commented Lindsey Bryant, editor. "It means more of a chance to cover stories and issues besides school news."

The new style also meant an increase in cost. While typesetting and layout was done by the Graphic Arts Department and the staff, printing was done outside of school. To offset the approximate $275 cost of printing each issue, members sold ads, Christmas greetings and, new this year, computer date match-ups.

"Instead of a Valentine issue, we matched students with their 'perfect dates'," said Ms. Carey, advisor. "Response was good and we are planning on it again next year."

Challa Brown covered sports in her first year as a reporter on the staff.

The increased cost of producing the new DEVILS' ADVOCATE meant raising the price to 25¢ a copy.

Pep Low Despite Savings

Even a money saving on the price of tickets and transportation to basketball games did not draw many members to Basketball Pep Club this year.

Since the organization existed for those who liked to go to games, there were no major fund raisers. Members paid a pep club fee to receive the advantage of cheaper prices for game admission and transportation to the away games.

Members helped to organize pep sessions during the season and supported the cheerleaders at games but a disappointing basketball season kept membership small and "pep" weak unlike the support shown during the past winning football season.

Ms. Wendy Black, sponsor, plans on improving the club next year, concentrating on recruiting more members.

The Basketball Pep Club and the cheerleaders organized the pep session before the first basketball game of Sectionals.

The size and strength of the Pep Club depends on the kind of season the team has. This season kept numbers low.

Thespians Win State Honors

"The success of the theatre at Lowell has been because of the large group of Theatre Arts and Thespian members who this year worked toward the goals of pride in Lowell High School, themselves and each other," said Mrs. Debra Ciochina, director. The result was two spectacular productions, GREASE and THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16, and the winning of honors at the State Drama Convention.

There were only two shows this year yet both were quite successful. The winter show, the drama, THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16, showed how versatile club members were since most of them were veterans of musicals. One of the performances was a benefit for Tri Kappa sorority who later awarded a scholarship to a theatre student. The play also received recognition from the HAMMOND TIMES in their first review of a high school production.

The theatre group also took honors state-wide at convention.

Tom Gunning was winner of the Disney World Audition; he and Gina Eich took first place in the Dramatic Duo competition also. Only the eight top technicians in the state are recognized and two of them were Jane Richardson and Lisa Krupa. Renee Mortimer will serve as state treasurer next year.

Through these talented actors and actresses, an avid interest in theatre and group fellowship has become a tradition at Lowell.

For the State Contest, Kirk Redman and Ben Ruley wrote and perfoed a duet.

Tickets for THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16 went fast since the audience had the chance to participate in the play as members of the jury.

Spring Delayed by Snow

March 21 may have been the first official day of spring, but you couldn't tell it by Lowell's weather: a freak "winter" snowstorm cancelled classes for the day.

Spring sports were also strangely affected by the weather. Cold rainy days cancelled baseball games and tennis matches but golf try outs brought out a record number of interested boys.

Spring activities were backward too when everyone dressed "down" for MORP. But the weather finally co-operated in time for the Prom and graduation.

The 1982-83 school year brought out new ideas, fond memories and well-deserved successes. The spirit of Lowell High School soared—weather or not.

New Touch Added to Sadie

The nervous groom slipped a blue pipe cleaner ring on his bride who wore jeans and a cowboy hat.

The preacher said, "With the power invested in me by the Athletic Department, I pronounce you hitched until 11:00 p.m.!"

Sound a little backward? It's supposed to; it's Sadie Hawkins!

This year's turnabout dance was held on March 25. As sponsors, the junior class turned the Multi-Purpose Room into a western scene with bales of hay spread around the dance floor. Music was provided by "White Lightning". Preachers for the evening were "Reverend" Jeff Dhonau and "Reverend" Kevin Ivers.

A new attraction to the annual dance was a dance contest. Winners, Jerri Ballou and Ted Hansen, were named "Daisy Mae" and "Lil' Abner" of Sadie Hawkins.

Tina Paquette was chairman of the dance which helped the juniors raise funds for the Prom.

Bales of hay for decoration set a "down home" feeling and gave Bob Sailer ammunition for some Sadie Hawkins fun.

Sitting out a dance at Sadie Hawkins means finding a comfortable pile of hay.

"Reverend" Ivers hitched Kathy Odle and her date forever—or until the end of the dance—whichever came first.

"White Lightning" provided country and contemporary music for dancers Renee Delapaz and Larry Miller.

The juniors sold lemonade for refreshments, while Mike Campbell helped to serve the free popcorn.

Cowboy hats were prizes for Ted Hansen and Jerri Ballou, winners of the dance contest.

Almost anything was in style and acceptable for MORP.

Ginger Neighbor and Kevin Spitler announced their arrival at MORP by signing in on the graffiti wall.

SC Trashes DC—MORP

Weeks before the actual event, signs warning that MORP was coming could be seen around the building and it took that long for most to figure out that "MORP" was "Prom" backward. And MORP was truly backward too!

Dress was anything from punk to hobo; trash and graffiti were "decorations" but the Student Council—sponsored dance gave students a chance to relax and let their hair down before the formality and excitement of Prom.

In a few weeks, MORP's "Back Alley Blues" theme would be transformed into a romantic setting for the Prom.

Career Day, May 11, 1983

Representatives from the business and professional communities of Lowell, Merrillville, Gary and even Indianapolis brought their knowledge and experience to Lowell this spring for Career Day.

Mrs. Arline Vandermark, guidance counselor, again co-ordinated the speakers from 34 career fields. The most popular speaker was Mr. Joe Debiaggio from the Federal Bureau of Investigation who not only spoke of his experiences but also brought examples of weapons and technology used by the Bureau.

Big City Theme Dazzles

The junior class invited their guests to take a stroll through Central Park on the night of May 14, 1983. Their guests weren't disappointed as they walked the streets of New York City for the Junior-Senior Prom.

The task of bringing the theme, "New York, New York", to life began the summer before. Lindsey Bryant, junior class president, organized prom committees during the summer and they started adapting the theme to the decorations.

The area was divided into three sections: the hallway circling the Multi-Purpose Room was Broadway; the Devils' Commons became Times Square with a sidewalk cafe, flower vendor and horseless carriage; the Multi-Purpose Room served as Central Park decorated with cardboard "skyscrapers".

For the juniors, this night meant the granting of a year-long wish. Said Lindsey, "We wanted a classy Prom. This would be the seniors' final thing and we wanted it to be special for them."

Lynette Burchell was greeted by John Dougherty at the main entrance and escorted to the door of the Little Theatre.

Judy Cusumano and her date Paul Domanski signed in before taking a stroll down Broadway.

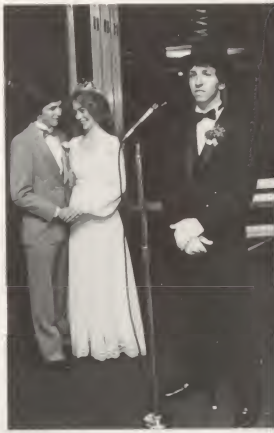

Fifteen hundred silver stars and 12 foot cardboard skyscrapers turned the Multi-Purpose Room into Central Park.

Mendy Steward dressed as a sidewalk vendor to serve refreshments to Rebecca Rineheart and her escort for the evening.

Top hat and tails were the dress for announcer Paul Bakker. Dave Derr and Debi DeWitt wait to make their entrance into Central Park.

In Times Square, the authentic horseless carriage was a perfect rest spot for Julie Nelson and her date.

Music for dancers Deanna Bachman and Kreg Schmidt was provided by disc jockey Doug Lindemer.

It was the last time that the Class of 1983 could officially "party hardy" together as a group.

Chosen as "Mr. Wornhoff's Favorite" in the Hall of Fun, Jeff Hall would like to try out his award on his favorite Dean of Students.

Jim Wright was anxious to get to the "surprise" inside his Hall of Fun award.

Four years of dedicated sloppiness paid off for Dennis Smith and Betty Cooper as winners of the Hall of Fun's "Messiest Locker" award.

Last Party Stirs Emotions

Few parties can be sad and happy at the same time, but the Senior Banquet brought tears and smiles to seniors who gathered for the last time as a class to dedicate themselves to having a good time.

Balloons, colorful streamers and Hall of Fun awards made the evening fun but as the last bars of "Celebration" were played, seniors realized that after that night, each of them would go his separate way in life.

After four years of homeroom attendance and ditch slips, the last official duty of senior sponsors Mr. Goetz, Mrs. Hafer and Mrs. Mills was to make sure everyone had a good time.

Last Steps Stretch Far

The Class of 1983 ended its high school career on May 22, 1983. The combined Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises honored 277 seniors.

While the graduation ceremony was a formal one, it was also a time for seniors to remember friendships, good times and the hard work that led them to their place on the gym floor on that Sunday afternoon in May.

Religious leaders from the community provided a solemn charge to the class but senior speakers, Lisa Kormendy, Kurt Kintzel and Darla Snell, added a personal and familiar tone to the occasion.

The final walk out of Lowell High School was, in reality, a short one, but for the graduating seniors of 1983, it was one that would last a lifetime.

As honor graduates, Rick Rokosz and Diane Polihronis led the recessional after officially graduating.

In his speech, Kurt Kintzel warned his classmates not to limit their dreams.

Graduation preparations are a serious consideration for seniors Bob Vuletich and Duane Hutchison.

Behind the scenes, Mr. Wornhoff readied graduates for an orderly processional into the gym to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance".

Senior speaker Darla Snell compared her four years at Lowell to an airline flight.

As one of the distributors of diplomas, Mr. John Bryant, school board president offers his congratulations to Chuck Bakker.

Lisa Kormendy asked her fellow graduates a pertinent question: "Where do we go from here?"

Iussig New Varsity Coach

Baseball has always been a winning sport for Lowell and Coach Pete Iussig, the new Varsity Baseball Team's coach, tried to continue that tradition. Two past sectional championships brought out many new prospective players along with returning team members. To build his own winning team for this season and the future, Coach Iussig decided to go with several new faces along with the old ones.

His strategy seemed to work. Iussig's selection of the triple threat of Ted Hansen, Mike Johnson and Rob Dimitt, returning lettermen, made for strong hitting and base running which Iussig identified as the team's strengths.

While Lowell was eliminated early from Sectional play with a 1-4 loss to Crown Point, the team did defeat Munster at home. They were a tough conference opponent and came into the game with a 10-1 record but the Varsity defeated them 15-3. The team finished with an 11-16 record.

As one of the Most Valuable Players, Mike Johnson added to the team's overall strength in hitting.

KV shut out Lowell later in the season with a score of 0-4.

Iussig credits "class student athletes" in helping him achieve his goals as a new head coach.

John Seberger got his training for the Varsity from his JV Baseball Team experience last year

The Freshman Baseball Team's infield was one of the best in the conference according to Coach Ivers.

With a team average of .190, hitting was the team's weakest area.

Coach, Team Begin New

Building a team strong in baseball fundamentals was the job of Mr. Kevin Ivers as a first-time coach of the Freshman Baseball Team. The team and its coach learned their lessons well.

"I enjoyed my first coaching assignment. The team knew how to mix seriousness with fun," said

Coach Ivers.

A strong infield and pitching were the team's strongest areas that developed as the season progressed. As an example, the freshmen came back from a 3-9 loss to Crown Point early in the season to later beat them 5-4.

Like most spring sports, the team suffered with the weather. Six games were cancelled and three were never made up. But, dedicated players, close games and supportive fans made the season, for both the team and its coach, a "winner".

Returning letterman Rick Williams turned in a star performance in the relays.

Coach Thomas' goal was to improve the field events. He succeeded with Jeff Jeanor who was able to break the school pole vault record with the help of an indoor runway.

Records in Field Events

The Boys' Track Team record reads like an honor roll of individual achievements. And for Coach Bob Thomas in his first year as head track coach, who could ask for more?

"We had a good group of seniors who were the nucleus of the team. They also scored the biggest amount of points and this is what all coaches hope they could do," said Thomas.

As a Most Valuable Player, senior Pat Kennedy was a Sectional champ in discus and broke the school record of 156 feet 11 inches. Senior Jeff Jeanor was helped in breaking the school pole vault record of 12 feet 11½ inches by the new indoor pole vault runway.

Underclassmen who will return next year did well, too. Junior Chris Tauber, a Most Valuable Player, was a Sectional champ in the 400 meter dash. Rick Williams, junior, did an outstanding job in the relays and sprints, placing third in the Sectional's 200 meter event.

Chris Tauber's season performance was just a warm-up for his Sectional placing in the 400 meter dash.

Hurdles was the team's weakest area which Coach Thomas plans to tighten up for next year.

High Jump was one of the stronger events for the team this season.

For senior Kathy Huke and freshman Denise Wlekinski, the 1600 relay was a strong event for them as well as for the team.

Firsts for Hotler, Huke

Inexperience and weaknesses in the sprints and hurdles kept the Girls' Track Team to a 6-11 season. Coach Chuck Naumowich also had to deal with a lack of commitment on the part of some runners.

Nevertheless, individual runners and events stood out as winners during the season. Seniors

Sara Hotler and Kathy Huke shared honors as Most Valuable Players. Kathy earned her title with her performances in the sprints and long jump. Sara also distinguished herself in the sprints, long jump and the high jump.

The team's strength was in the middle distance races, high jump and long jump. In the conference meet, the 800 meter relay team broke the school record and the 1600 meter relay team ran their best time of the year.

Math student teacher, Karen Beekman from Ball State University, assisted Coach Naumowich. Her specialty was the high jump and the hurdles.

Sprints and the 100 meter relay were weaknesses that led to a defeat by Lake Central.

Sara Hotler's skill was in the sprints, and the long and high jumps. Tammy Elliott did well in the sprints.

Lake Central played upon the weakness of sprinters like Laura Koppen to win the meet.

Season Blamed on Weather

When it comes to tennis at Lowell, there is no sex discrimination. Like the boys, the Girls' Tennis Team suffered from a lack of playing experience. While other teams in the conference have the opportunity to play year-round, the girls are limited by weather and court conditions since there are no indoor courts available.

It's no wonder the season record was 2-13. The first victory over Boone Grove was expected but the 3-2 win over Lake Station was a highlight of an otherwise dismal season.

The best individual record of 6-10 was turned in by Kara Borromeo, the team's Most Valuable Player. Jill Schlueter also had a promising season record of 6-8. The most improved player over the season was Tracy Boyles.

Tracey Boyles was voted as the team's Most Improved Player. Here she is paired with Deb Bakker in a doubles match against Portage.

Poor weather cancelled many matches and limited practice time. Karen Grant finished her season with a 0-15 record because of it.

In his last year as Golf coach, Mr. Perry took the team to an 11-7 season with Chris Maylath as a medalist shooting in Sectionals. Chris Lemp was a returning letterman.

Dave Heath improved his shooting record, but like the other players was denied practice time because of course fees.

Practice Hindered by Cost

Golf has never been Lowell's strongest sport, but this year seemed to mark a turn-around for the Boys' Golf Team. Thirty-five boys came for tryouts and they finished with an 11-7 season record.

One obstacle seemed impossible to fight—a lack of practice. Lowell players were at a disadvantage since no golf course in the area gave special rates to students as do the courses for other teams in our conference. Therefore, Munster, Lake Central and Highland provided stiff competition.

Said Coach Lee Perry, "South Shore, where we play our home matches, charges the same for students as they do adults. Most of our players cannot afford to play as often as they should to be real competitive."

Despite this, the team placed ninth out of 20 teams in Sectionals. They shot the best score in three years with Chris Maylath shooting as a medalist at 82.

Spring— In the News

News was being made on all fronts this spring—in weather, sports, politics and entertainment.

Rain continued to drown the Pacific coast while the Midwest welcomed spring with a snowstorm. When spring finally arrived, it brought a destructive earthquake to California and tornadoes to Texas.

In sports, Greg Meyer won the Boston Marathon; Sunny's Halo won the Kentucky Derby and Severiano Ballestros won the Masters' golf tournament.

Chicago politics inaugurated Harold Washington as the city's first black mayor, only to have him locked in a power struggle with the City Council.

A Reagan commission reported that American education was mediocre at best and recommended changes in number of credits, teacher education and an extension of the school year.

Oscars went to "Gandhi" for Best Picture, Ben Kingsley for Best Actor and Meryl Streep for Best Actress. For four consecutive nights, "Thorn Birds" kept television audiences glued to their seats.

The news in Lowell was good. Spring had finally arrived and another school year was rapidly coming to an end.

Stress on Community Work

The name "L Club" may lead people to believe that the club exists only for the benefit of athletics but this year has proved those people wrong.

Karen Grant, president, worked toward a community service oriented group. One of their projects was to bring residents of the nursing home in town to athletic events.

For the athletic teams at Lowell, L Club purchased a training cabinet to store medical supplies. They also worked on encouraging participation in and attendance at sporting events.

"To have a really successful sports program, the entire student body must get involved. Those who are not presently in a sport are encouraged to go out for one or come and watch," said Karen.

Rewards for their group effort came to club members in a spring canoe trip. The outing was completely financed by club members through car washes and pizza sales. It reflected their new spirit of working together for the community and the school.

Gold Medal Won at State

George Alm led the male members in Swing Choir in their own number at the Christmas concert.

Swing Choir has developed into a professional group of performers who have displayed their talents this year at concerts and competitions.

They were in demand this year as entertainment for several school banquets such as Sunshine Club and Industrial Education in addition to performing for community-sponsored banquets as their fame spread. The group also had on their calendar their annual Fall, Christmas and Spring concerts for Lowell audiences.

Swing Choir competed in several contests. In District Solo and Ensemble Contest, they earned two gold medals and advanced to State where they won a gold medal for their mixed ensemble selection and a silver medal for their madrigal selection.

A new activity was attending the Bishop Luers Show Choir Invitational in Fort Wayne where they saw professional show choirs perform.

Students in Industrial Education classes form the membership for Industrial Education club.

As president, Seth Nichols organized club members to produce a prize winning Homecoming float, a raffle, car wash and apple cider sale.

Projects Fund Scholarships

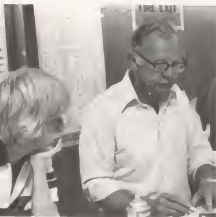

"Participation" was the motto this year for Lowell's Industrial Education Club.

Members began the year with a first place Homecoming float. They followed that activity with a Smurf Raffle, a car wash and an apple cider sale. The money raised went to scholarships for students who had completed at least eight semesters of Industrial Ed. classes and scored high in grades and skill.

Participation in activities was vital to make the projects a success and fund the scholarships. "Lack of participation caused a loss in the number of scholarships," commented Seth Nichols, president.

Club advisor, Mr. Bill Kalbac, encourages students interested in the field of Industrial Education to take an active part in the club's activities.

Rocket launches were difficult to schedule for Rocket Club because of the weather; it was either too cold, too rainy or too windy for members to compete against each other with their model rockets.

Elisabeth came to Lowell from Norway and was a member of Theatre Arts.

Tom found life in the United States to be very different but very pleasant.

Tom, Elisabeth Join LHS

Foreign Exchange Club had two exchange students, Elisabeth Egeland and Tom Immonen, as their service project this year. It was their responsibility to ensure that both visitors had a pleasurable time while here at Lowell by helping them adapt to life here in the United States.

"We co-ordinate other study trips to foreign countries through Youth for Understanding. We also assist in finding "host" families for students coming here to study," commented Mr. Kevin Ivers, sponsor.

From the reactions of Tom and Elisabeth, the group was successful. Tom, an exchange student from Finland, became involved in track and Theatre Arts, Elisabeth, from Norway, demonstrated her talent in gymnastics with a half-time show at the Parents' Night gymnastics meet.

To further expose members to life and customs in other countries, the group viewed the "Christmas Around the World" exhibit at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago.

Service Club Renews Goal

Sunshine Club came to life this year with a new sponsor, dynamic officers and a hard-working membership devoted to the goal of service to others.

The club regularly donated to the "Care and Share" project which helped needy families with food. Secretary, Mia Summit, was in charge of sending cards to those at Lowell who were ill or bereaved. For staff retirees, Mrs. Vandermark and Mr. Miller, Sunshine Club brightened their day with corsages and retirement gifts.

Fund raisers such as their candle sale and raffle enabled club members to donate to the Marion Hupp Cancer Fund and a scholarship fund for its members.

Sponsor, Mrs. Marilyn Riggle, said, "We hope to contribute a $100 scholarship each year to a Lowell graduate who is going into a health-related field."

With this renewed interest in Sunshine Club, members found the experience of helping others help them to have fun working together.

Projects Aid Refurnishing

Furnishing the living area in the Home Ec Department since the fire has been possible through the efforts of the Home Ec Club. Money raised from the successful sale of calendars and suncatchers this year enabled members to purchase a rocking chair and table for the area.

A highlight of the club year was the annual crowning of May Queen Lisa Kormendy during the Lowell Relays. Each year the club sponsors the election of a senior girl to usher in the spring at Lowell. For the Spring Tea, club members and students in Home Ec classes prepared refreshments for their parents and faculty who were invited to see student projects on display.

Home Ec Club members often provide homemade refreshments for functions held at the school. As a member, Mia Summit serves punch to guests.

Home Ec Club member Diane Poppe modeled one of her own designs at a fashion show that was supported by the Home Ec Department.

Contest Win to Hickman

Photography Club's "All-School Photo Contest" brought out the photographic talents of Lowell students. Entries, either black and white or color, were judged on their creativity and photographic skill. First place went to Judy Hickman who also worked as a yearbook photographer. Second and third place was won by Clint Mills and Penni Watkins, chief yearbook and newspaper photographer.

Club members were able to learn more about photography from a guest speaker, a professional photographer, who brought slides and photos for club members to evaluate.

OEA Active With Service

This year, OEA kept the honor of being one of the most active organizations at Lowell. There was never a dull moment with fund raisers and contests and at the same time, members helped prepare themselves for a business career.

"Students interested in a business career after high school or after advanced study would gain a great deal from OEA," commented Ms. Pat Nemeth, sponsor.

Members worked together on all activities which benefited the club, the school and the community. Instead of their usual Christmas party, members presented a Progressive Dinner along with their regular sale of Homecoming mums and balloons, cheese and sausage and citrus fruit.

For the school, OEA operated the school bookstore and for the community, the organization donated to the Christmas Food Drive and sponsored a Bowl-a-Thon to raise money for the Special Olympics. This activity won the group a Chapter Award at Nationals.

Renee Delapaz was elected District 1 Vice-president at the State contest.

Workers Joy Jeanor, Debbie Reeder and Eileen Ryan did their share in making a profit for OEA at the car wash last summer.

While the annual flower sale may not be Spanish by nature, Jeannie Rogers does her best to show her interest in the Spanish culture.

As president, Polly Watkins headed the committee which wrote the club's constitution that was approved by the membership.

Activities Enliven Culture

Spanish culture and language is alive and well in Lowell thanks to Spanish Club and their whirl of activities.

To their calendar of projects this year, they added some new activities. Members attended a performance of the Ballet Folklorico de Mexico, sponsored a candy sale and spent much of their meeting time writing a club constitution for club approval.

In between, Spanish Club members continued their successful traditions of Christmas caroling, a flower sale in the spring and a final banquet at a Spanish restaurant.

"I feel that this year has been a success. We have increased our membership and have done more activities. I hope that next year will be even more of a success," said Polly Watkins, president.

Education Braves Weather

There were some things which the weather couldn't affect. Through sleet or rain, like the mail, education went on at Lowell High School.

Learning, school spirit and class involvement defied the rains of spring and the blizzards of winter. Only the physical structure seemed to suffer from the effects of the weather. We changed our wardrobe as the seasons changed but our determination to make our high school times the best of our lives remained strong.

The changing seasons delayed events or made them more of a challenge but our goals stayed firm. Teachers still taught; students still learned; administrators still guided us—weather or not.

More girls are becoming interested in shop classes such as this Auto Mechanics course.

Junior English needs all of Cindy Blank's concentration.

Changes Reflect Updating

Every department at Lowell underwent some kind of change this year. In preparation for the North Central evaluation committee's visit in 1984, each department began to revise its curriculum, evaluate and suggest new programs and consider its place in relationship to the other departments. As a result, some new courses will be offered next year.

While improvements were made to better meet the needs of students, there were changes in personnel too. Mr. Ivers became a member of the Foreign Language Department; Mrs. Vandermark, Mr. Miller and Mr. Perry completed many years of service and devotion to education; the sudden death of Mr. Hupp left a void that will be difficult to fill.

Whatever the changes, the academic structure at Lowell still worked to provide students with the means of being successful.

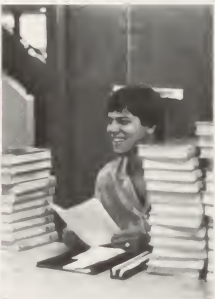

Mr. Goodman's students in General Science put basic scientific principles into practice.

With the aid of the Compugraphics typesetter and word processor, Mr. Cameron brings technology to Graphic Arts for Tom Immonen.

Shop Drawing borrows from the areas of math and science to teach basic architecture and drafting.

Mr. Goetz buries himself in multiplication tables, geometric designs and long division as a math teacher.

One of the goals of the U.S. History classes, like Mr. Berger's, was to let students use past events as a way of forming opinions and ideas about the future.

Uncertain spring weather kept Mr. Bales busy rescheduling athletic events. This spring, Dr. Luekens earned his Ph.D. from Purdue.

On Honors Night, Mr. Wornhoff assisted Mr. Bales in presenting athletic awards.

Concern Is Entire School

The administration had to deal with situations both inside and outside the building this year.

According to Mr. Tom Johnson, Assistant Principal, Lowell is trying to return to a more traditional scheduling. The first step toward that goal was the decision to eliminate float days which stirred student reaction. The matter was finally settled by the School Board who reinstated float days for government students only.

Two projects outside the building were also the administration's concern. The entire roof was resurfaced in preparation for the asbestos abatement project.

"This summer they are removing all of the asbestos from the ceilings in the gym and commons and replacing it with new plaster material. This new substance will bond the asbestos," said Mr. Johnson.

Regardless of where the problem was, the administration was there to handle it.

Focus Is on Basic Skills

The English Department used a "back to basics" approach with a special emphasis on spelling and writing. For students, this meant a lot of writing and rewriting.

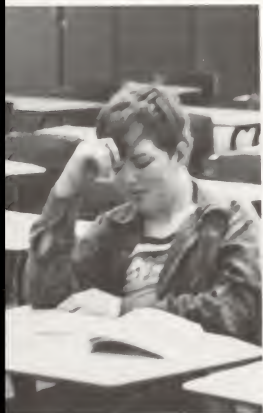

While English is a requirement, many students opted to receive their credit through Speech or Drama. Because of the kinds of activities required by Mrs. Ciochina, students were eager to try a more active approach to Language Arts.

On the other hand, College English enrollment remained constant.

"It appeals to students who are college-bound. The course provided a solid basis for college composition and literature. Feedback indicated that students who do well in College English generally do well in College Freshman Comp. and Lit.," said Mrs. Mary Cusic, department chairperson.

Dale Gasparini received special tutoring in English as part of the "back to basics" program.

Mr. Hall helped freshmen English students develop library and research skills with a class project.

Computer Interest Grows

The computer age really hit Lowell High School about a year ago but its effects are still being felt in the Math Department. Enrollment this year in the Computer Programming course was up 100% and is expected to rise 50% next year.

According to Mr. Larry Owenga, department chairperson, the goal of the department has been to "offer a wide range of math application courses for both general-life students and extensive background for higher level math endeavors."

With this in mind, a new course, "Pre-Algebra", will be offered for freshmen.

Large Algebra I classes were sometimes a problem when it came to giving individual attention.

Interest in the Computer Programming course continued to rise with enrollment up 100% this year

Computer students used in-class time to get the basics of computers before lab work at the computers themselves.

Freshmen next year will have the option of taking Algebra I with Mr. Goetz or a Pre-Algebra course.

Beth Kaiser had to dress and assume the personality of a character from history for History Day.

SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT—ROW 1: Mrs. Fran Lonardi, Mrs. Margaret Hurt ROW 2: Mr. Randy DeWeese, Mr. Bill Berger, Mr. Chuck Naumowich, Mr. Mike Kamanaroff

Students Recreate the Past

Students got the chance to make their own "history". On History Day, U.S. History students dressed as famous people from the past whom they had researched. Their classmates had to guess who they were.

On Civil War Day, members from a community organization knowledgeable on the Civil War presented a demonstration of authentic uniforms, weapons and other items from that era.

The Social Studies Department believes in a practical approach to history and current events, so government students staged a mock Congress. They authored bills, worked on committees, and sat in full sessions to vote on their bills.

"The students were amazed at the real work an actual Congressman has to perform. Many sound bills were passed into law by the school Congress," said Mr. Kamanaroff, government teacher and department chairperson.

The authentic costumes and weapons of the Civil War were on display for the department's Civil War Day.

Through Mrs. Hurt's lessons in history, students saw how earlier events shaped the events of today.

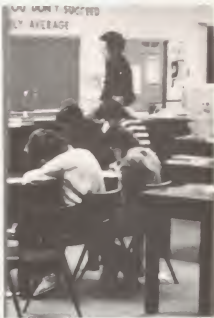

For the student interested in better understanding his role in shaping society, there is Mrs. Lonardi's Sociology class.

With Chemistry expanded to a full year, students had more of a chance to learn and apply fundamentals in their work.

Freshmen had a rough start in Mr. Weiland's Biology class but learned that preparation was the key to success.

Teaching the Advanced Science Seminar course meant keeping up with the latest scientific advancements for Mr. Dhonau.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT—ROW 1: Mr. Jeff Stone, Mr. Mark Goodman, Mrs. Sue McQuiston ROW 2: Sgt. Carl Gayfield, Major Ben Rineheart, Mr. Jeff Dhonau, Mr. Bill Weiland, Mr. Omer Beeching

Chem Expanded Full Year

The major change in the Science Department was the extending of Chemistry to a full year course. In this way, students planning on college will be better prepared to meet college requirements.

The department helped prepare Lowell students Gene Anderson, John Anderson, Pat Kennedy, Randy Kien, Teresa Kirgan, Tim Rigg, Rebecca Rineheart, Rick Rokosz, and Rachel Sumara for the Jets competition held at Purdue University. The team placed second based on their knowledge of such areas as physics, biology and chemistry.

In her Chemistry class, Mrs. McQuiston set the example for safety when conducting an experiment.

Chemistry came easier for Chris Lemp when he could learn it by music.

"Science is involved with every day living from understanding the weather report to understanding ourselves," said Mr. Beeching.

As Debbie Reeder types from taped instructions, she is learning a business skill which will help get her a job as a secretary.

Skills Valuable Two Ways

"Our courses help students not only as they prepare for jobs, but they also give them personal use skills. As we continue in the computer age, business skills will take on more and more importance," said Ms. Pat Nemeth, Business Department chairperson.

With the occupational outlook for business occupations so promising, the department added Word Processing instruction to its curriculum in the Intensive Office Lab. Next year, computer instruction will expand the Data Processing program.

Typing and shorthand were still popular courses with all students because of their use in job preparation and personal development. Those who had definitely decided on a business career learned valuable job experience in the Intensive Office Lab.

Commented Ms. Nemeth, "Students are interested in business courses. They realize the value they can gain as they prepare for the job market."

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT—Ms. Kathy Nelson, Mrs. Nancy Reyes, Mr. Bob Miller, Ms. Pat Nemeth, Mrs. Phyllis Cunningham

The Business Department has not been able to keep pace with changing technology and needs more computers and word processors to compliment the courses being offered.

Under Ms. Nemeth's guidance, the Intensive Office Lab runs the school bookstore.

Typing I students learn a skill which not only helps them on the job but in their schoolwork as well.

The extra hours Trent Depel put in at the typewriter helped him develop speed and accuracy.

Indust. Ed. Meets Needs

Industrial Education at Lowell shifted direction to better prepare students for life. It would be more appropriate to title it "Technological Education".

Mr. Bill Kalbac, department chairperson commented, "Today's graduates are entering a world of change—a world of high technology. These graduates will be surrounded by the benefits—and the problems—which accompany this new condition. Many graduates will pursue a career with a technological focus."

The Industrial Education staff and curriculum is addressing this important need in today's world. It is a growing need. We are in a world complicated by our own technology.

Hopefully, the memories of Industrial Education students will combine with other school subjects to create happiness and fulfillment in a life of "good" for everyone."

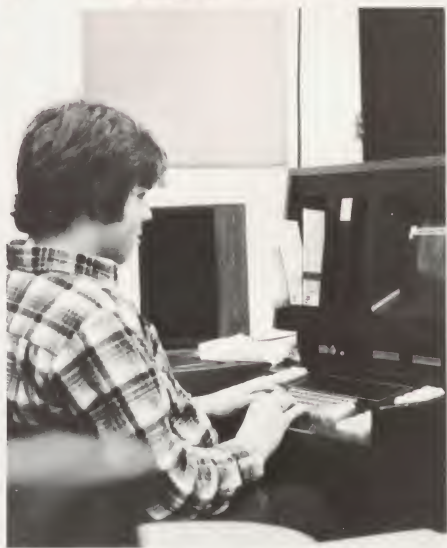

In Woods, students are learning skills not only to earn a credit but for a future job.

Rick McIntyre has developed skill on the Compugraphics typesetter so that he is now able to do out of class projects also.

The Industrial Education Department is trying to prepare students so they can adequately compete in a technological society.

New Jazz Band Introduced

"The band program at Lowell is improving," stated Mr. Joe Vaccaro, band director. "If people would practice more the program would improve even more."

The band played more difficult music and their improvement showed when they won first place at the Portage band contest in the spring.

The band began their road to improvement with appearances in Lowell's Memorial and Labor Day Parades, KV's Homecoming and Fourth of July parades in Merrillville, Crown Point, Hebron and Whiting.

During the school year, the Marching Red Devils entertained during home football games' half-times and the Pep Band cheered on the team during basketball season. In addition, the band entertained audiences at its own Fall, Christmas, Pops and Spring concerts.

Newly formed this year was the Jazz Band. Interested band members rehearsed evenings for their debut at the Pops and Spring Concerts.

To upgrade performances, the band tried more difficult music which meant more hours of practice.

The Marching Red Devils were led by senior Randy Kien as drum major.

Practice for the band is year-round since they are marching in parades during the summer before school begins.

Mr. Vacaro has begun to see improvement in band performances but still sees the need for more practice.

The various choral groups at Lowell are designed to appeal to the student who wants to develop his vocal talent or who just likes to sing.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Lorig, the Choir has developed into a performing group able to compete with some of the top high school choirs in the area.

Performances Show Growth

"The Lowell High School Choral Department has matured in number and in quality where we can prove ourselves worthy to be compared equally to other outstanding choral programs in the county," said Mrs. Julia Lorig, choir director.

With the addition of a new course, "Vocal Ensemble", enrollment increased by 30%.

Choir students spent many hours in class and after school preparing for competitions. Their performance at the Lake County Choral Festival involved the Vocal Ensemble and Concert Choir who performed five choral numbers with choirs from area schools. Each choir also performed two individual numbers.

Mrs. Lorig said, "The choir members put in extra hours to learn the music . . . but the kids attacked the problem and conquered it, the result being a tremendous rise in confidence and self-esteem."

At the District Solo and Ensemble Contest, the Choir won 73 gold medals and 41 silver medals. At State, they came back with 35 gold medals and 22 silver medals.

Life Skills Also Taught

The Art Department worked to provide art and life experiences for not only the beginning art student but also for the college-bound student. Self-motivation and creativity were necessary to complete projects for the classes in the department and these are skills that could be used after high school regardless of a student's area of interest.

Popular courses were ceramics and painting. In ceramics, students could make usable objects. In Mr. Sufana's painting class, students could greatly benefit from his talent and skill as an artist.

ART DEPARTMENT—Mrs. Patricia Anderson, Mr. Tom Sufana

From her ceramics class, Vicki Polo made objects which she could use as gifts or for her own enjoyment.

Advanced courses in the Art Department gave Brenda Ewert a change to develop her creativity and develop self-motivation.

I & D Sports for Athletes allows members of the various sports teams to develop their skills in the sport of their choice with individualized instruction.

Athletes Can Specialize

The I & D Sports Class, the most popular class in the Physical Education Department, was taught this year in a three-cycle format. Students spent time in the classroom learning background information from lectures and discussion. In group activity, students worked as teams to put classroom theory and skills into practice. Through individualized instruction, students could perfect their techniques in a particular sport. In these ways, I & D athletes were allowed flexibility in choosing activities they wanted to specialize in.

Next year, the PE Department will use a new curriculum which will enable students to gain knowledge useful to them after high school.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT—ROW 1: Mrs. Cheryl Mitchell, Mrs. Joy Hafer
ROW 2: Mr. Steve Leonard, Mr. Joe Lorig, Mr. Don Bales

Coach Leonard's I & D class spent some of their time listening to lectures to learn the basics of a particular sport.

Survival Course Popular

A new course, "Living On Your Own", was offered this year in the Home Ec Department. The class was popular with both male and female students who learned the fundamentals of survival without mom or dad to help. In the course, students were required to budget money, prepare meals and do simple sewing jobs.

In "Child Development", girls gained practical experience from a live demonstration. The students saw the differences in the abilities of actual children ranging in age from six months to a year old.

According to Mrs. Wilma Hardesty, department chairperson, both courses have "helped students see the need for learning about themselves and others as Home Economists."

As part of a class project, "Family Relations" students must plan their "dream wedding".

"Child Development" classes saw firsthand what a difference a few months makes in the abilities of young children.

Besides using the textbook and tapes, first year Spanish students became more familiar with the language by playing games in Spanish.

Lowell's Foreign Language Department prepares everyone for bilingual experiences after high school.

Honors Winner in French

Mr. Kevin Ivers joined the Foreign Language Department this year teaching Spanish. A graduate of Ball State University, Mr. Ivers had previous teaching experience at Highland High School and a summer of training in Spain.

Three students from the department, Jodi Vandenberg and Michelle Sutton in French and Polly Watkins in Spanish, tested for the Indiana University Honors Program which sponsors a year of learning abroad for eligible language students.

The girls progressed through several levels of testing and interviewing with Jodi emerging as qualified to study for a year in France with the program.

With more and more colleges requiring foreign language competency for entrance, the Foreign Language Department is preparing students in the broadest way for experiences after high school.

ICE

Seventeen juniors and seniors enrolled in ICE divided their time between classes at Lowell High School and paid work experience in a career field they were interested in. Through the efforts of Mr. Kane, students were employed by local businesses such as McDonald's, the Dairy Queen and St. Anthony's Hospital.

Mr. Jim Kane is co-ordinator of ICE.

Agriculture

Mr. Rich Bailey taught Agriculture classes at school and worked with the community to promote farming.

In Agriculture classes like Animal Husbandry, students learned more about farming than just the planting of crops.

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT—Mr. Ron Mills, Mrs. Arline Vandermark, Mr. Lee Perry

Speakers from local colleges spoke to juniors about college planning as part of a group counseling session.

Group Work Benefits More

This year, the Guidance Department placed more emphasis on group counseling. One of the most successful groups was in the area of college planning. Students in Mrs. Foss' junior English classes heard college personnel speak on admissions, financing and alternatives to college. This group counseling program, along with others sponsored by the department, helped students prepare for their future careers.

"This activity has had a very positive influence upon our students and gets more information to them in a shorter period of time. More and varied group counseling experiences are being planned for next year," said Mr. Ron Mills, department chairperson.

Mrs. Woolfolk worked with the counselors in scheduling appointments, booking college representatives and helping with arena.

Mr. Mills finds personal counseling an on-going activity that is continually rewarding.

LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY

Mrs. Stephan helped teachers with audio-visual equipment and helped Mrs. Berg in the library.

The selling of tickets to school events was centralized in the library and supervised by Mrs. Berg.

Cutbacks Increase Duties

Who answers the phones? Who keeps accurate records of accounts and attendance? Who helps monitor study halls? Who sells tickets for events? All around LHS are the secretaries and aides who perform these duties.

Due to budget cuts, there were fewer aides than last year so the remaining staff had more responsibilities. Mrs. Betty Ellis had to divide her time between the A and D pod resource centers. Mrs. Sandy Berg took over the duty of selling tickets for events as well as running the library after the death of Mr. Hupp.

As bookkeeper in charge of all school and student accounts, Mrs. Paula Tilton received special training at a two-year business college.

"I like people and I like to work with nice people. I enjoy my job because I work with nice people," said Mrs. Tilton.

Working with nice people and helping the staff and students are both the duties and rewards for our secretaries and aides.

Besides supervising freshmen study halls, Mrs. Midkiff assisted in the guidance office.

Buttons Show Class Pride

"I Love the Class of '83" read the bumper stickers and buttons the seniors sold as their last class fund raiser. The slogan seemed appropriate since the class had shown the feeling for four years.

As seniors, it was time for them to take a rest as a class, to enjoy being seniors. Money they raised, therefore, went to provide roses for the girls at graduation and for a last party to celebrate four years of work and fun at Lowell High School.

In those four years, the class had won a Spirit Stick, sponsored a Prom, survived chemistry and government, and enjoyed many snow days. But more importantly, they had formed friendships, learned lessons and prepared themselves for their lives beyond the round buildings of Lowell.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS—Darla Snell, President; Lisa Kormendy, Vice-President; Stacey Knorr, Secretary/Treasurer

Over 70 seniors chose to graduate mid-term. Donna Mitchell works out a final credit count with Mr. Perry to see if she is eligible to graduate early.

David Trumble was a 1983 mid-term graduate. He was taken from us in a car accident shortly after finishing his career at Lowell High School. He will be remembered for the way in which he touched the lives of those around him.

Cheryl Umlauf never completed her high school career at Lowell for she was taken from us as a freshman. Nevertheless, the Class of 1983 still remembers her as they graduate.

Juniors' Wish Comes True

"I wanted a really good Prom. I wanted to bring the class together—to do a big thing together," said Lindsey Bryant, junior class president.

Her wish would take work.

Before school had begun, the Class of 1984 had sponsored two car washes and hired a band for the Prom.

In the fall, Lindsey organized a

Prom Advisory Council who decided on a theme and designed decorations. Prom Committees were formed to carry out the work.

A nice evening brought out crowds to Powder Puff during Homecoming and the class earned another $1000 for the Prom.

Sadie Hawkins was the class' last chance to ensure a "really good Prom". The added touch of a dance contest made it one of the more successful Sadie's.

Lindsey got her wish. How did she do it?

"If you sit back and realize all the work to do, it scares you. But there was so much enthusiasm from people, it was easy!"

For Cheryl Hamann, being a junior was sometimes a dangerous job.

The Class of 1984 sponsored Powder Puff, Sadie Hawkins, two car washes and a garage sale to finance the Prom.

In Memory . . .

Jim Marino was taken from us in late August, 1982. At Lowell, he was involved in Industrial Education and expressed an interest in auto mechanics. We will remember Jim Marino and the ways in which he touched the lives of those around him.

A homeroom check found Margaret Wheeler right where she was supposed to be—in homeroom!

If this book were required junior reading, it probably wouldn't be as interesting to Katrina, Laura, Robin, Mike and Dave.

Many juniors like Bob Hill decided to "dress" for the occasion on the last day of school.

Brenda Ewert and Cindy Wells could catch up on the news of the day in the junior locker bay.

Prom-goers were anxious to see how good they looked in the pictures taken by Spasoff Studios.

Prom Fund Facing Crisis

It was not a good year to be a sophomore.

Classes got more difficult. Many sophomores enrolled in challenging courses like computer programming and chemistry.

Sports became more competitive. Many sophomores earned varsity positions in basketball and baseball and had to compete against more experienced players.

Class activities became more scarce. The only fund raisers the Class of 1985 sponsored were a few bake sales. With the responsibility of presenting a Prom next year, the sophomore class has a long road ahead of them to raise money for the event.

Class president Kyle Antcliff cited a lack of class involvement as the problem.

Hopefully, next year will be a good year to be a junior.

Participation in Spirit Week activities and a few bake sales were the major activities of the sophomores.

Experiments and lab reports consumed the free time of chemistry student Jenni Bielefeld.

Hard to believe, but Kirk Redman found his thumb more interesting than sophomore English.

The Devils' Commons is a quiet place for Owen Whybrew and Vicki Polo after school.

Where else in the lunchroom would sophomore girls stand?

Few sophomores can reach the top as quickly as Joe Stoller did.

It wasn't much fun for Kay Juriss when she had to dodge the raindrops in the Labor Day parade.

The sophomores had their own corner of the South Commons in the morning.

Good, Bad Mark Beginning

The freshman class made an impression on Lowell High School.

Like any group just starting out, the class made some mistakes. An error in judgment on the part of some class members concerning the best way to get good grades temporarily caused a setback.

But the class rallied as their fund raising career got off to a good start with bake sales and the selling of refreshments at the Tri Kappa benefit performance of THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16. This profitable money-making project was a first for any class and may start a tradition for Lowell theatre-goers too.

The Class of 1986 let everyone know they had arrived.

All freshmen begin high school at Lowell with an assembly in the North Commons and a pep talk.

The freshmen had their share of good and bad times like anyone just starting out.

All freshmen were required to take Careers which met twice during a cycle in place of study hall.

High school lunches were a new experience for freshmen.

Some freshmen needed more help than others in maneuvering around Lowell High School.

A serious cheating situation developed among freshmen Biology students. They should have heeded the writing on the wall.

Bobbie Jo Wehle strikes a serious pose in her Basic Art class.

PARTING SHOTS

Weather Or Not

The weather affected the roof, our wardrobes and the events we sponsored.

Each season spotlighted special events like the winning of a football game, the passing of a test or the forming of a new friendship. What we've gained from these moments will be with us on the road after high school as will the changing seasons that continue to mark the times in our lives.

What never changed was our spirit and determination to do more, to be better. The pride, the knowledge, the values we've learned remained constant—weather or not.

A Special Dedication

"Teachers don't get old; they just lose their class," says the bumper sticker. Not true—especially in the case of three Lowell teachers, Mrs. Arline Vandermark, Mr. Robert Miller and Mr. Lee Perry, who ended their years of dedicated service to education with their retirement this year.

Each of them has given over 30 years of his life to young people. Their classroom or offices were not only places where information was willingly dispensed, but where those troubled could find a friend; those unhappy could find a kind word and those lost could find an example to follow.

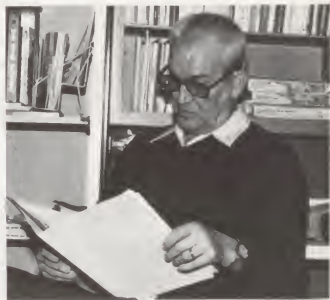

It's time now for them to rest. Yet all three plan on spending their newly found "free" time traveling, playing golf, or just keeping active. Lowell will continue and it will be better for having known these three fine people; for you see, Mrs. Vandermark, Mr. Miller and Mr. Perry haven't lost their class—they've instilled it in each one of us.

Mrs. Vandermark was born in Lowell and has spent 36 years teaching at Lowell.

Now that he is retired, Mr. Miller will spend his time working as a CPA, traveling and playing golf.

In his years in education, Mr. Perry has served as a teacher, a coach, and a guidance counselor.

In Memory ...

The loss of Mr. Marion Hupp this spring left us shocked and saddened. We have fond memories, however, of his cheerful "Good morning!" regardless of the time of day; his tie dotted with reminders; his motto of "Work, work, work!"

Mr. Hupp served others whether in the library or in every day life. His knowledge and his interest in education were valuable assets at Lowell.

There could be no more fitting dedication to his spirit and courage than the following thoughts written by him shortly before his death. Hopefully, they will serve as an inspiration to those of us left behind.

"Perhaps I have reasons to look back with some satisfaction, having lived what must surely be two-thirds or three-fourths of my allotted time on God's earth.

I have consumed, and yet accumulated, more wealth than most of my fellow human beings can imagine in their wildest fantasies. This is a dubious accomplishment at best.

My Masters degree was earned at one of the better universities in the mid-West, perhaps even in the U.S. But very little personal sacrifice was involved and I can claim only limited personal credit.

My wardrobe is more than adequate. Probably I have a dozen changes of clothing, each of which can be described as "dress-up". This is of little true significance.

We have two cars, either of which can get us from where we are to where we want to go in reasonable comfort. One of them even accomplishes this at a reasonable economy. Not important.

I enjoy an element of status among my professional colleagues and my personal friends. This is an ego building consideration but little more.

My record of church attendance leaves little to be desired. There are very few Sundays during the year that do not find me in the house of worship. This is a matter of pride but not really important.

These and similar attributes demand an inordinate amount of my time and consideration when in the final analysis, they count for naught.

What then, is important? Where should my priorities lie? When the score is finally totalled, how many of my efforts will count as a plus? Are there other things that deserve more of my attention?

What does the Lord require of you but to do justice, love, kindness, and to walk humbly with your God?"

DEDICATION

Each year before the last pages are done, the editor is asked to write a dedication to the people who made the LOWELLIAN a possibility. As editor, I would like to thank the people who helped make the 1983 LOWELLIAN possible.

First Ms. Carey, thank you very much for all your support. It was a long year, but I feel it was a rewarding one.

Lenore, thanks for staying with us. I know it was difficult.

Penni, you're a good photographer. Keep up the good work and thank you for all your help.

Our Herff Jones Representative, George Kingsley, Jr. helped us in many ways. This year he really helped me realize what my job as editor was. His support enabled me to keep going. A very special thank you goes to George.

There are some other people who deserve a big THANK YOU also. First Mr. Sufana who designed the cover; Miss Nemeth who let us use her typewriters from the Intensive Office Lab; ROOT for their last-minute pictures; the coaches, club sponsors, administration, and department chairpersons for the information they supplied us; the businesses who supported the yearbook; and Diva for the help of counting books and typing.

Even though there are so many people who helped to make the LOWELLIAN a success, there is only one reason for a yearbook. That reason is YOU. Therefore, the last dedication goes to you, the students of Lowell High School. Without students there would be no reason for a yearbook. This book's for YOU!

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has also become an important employer of women, with 5.5 million women employed in the public sector in 1995, compared with 4.5 million in 1980.

There are a number of reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of women. One reason is that the public sector has a high proportion of women in its workforce. In 1995, 88% of the public sector workforce were women, compared with 78% in 1980. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that the public sector has a high proportion of jobs that are traditionally held by women, such as teaching, nursing, and social work.

Another reason why the public sector has become an important employer of women is that it has a high proportion of jobs that are full-time and permanent. In 1995, 68% of the public sector workforce were employed on full-time contracts, compared with 58% in 1980. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that the public sector has a high proportion of jobs that are essential to the functioning of the state, such as those in the health and education sectors.

A third reason why the public sector has become an important employer of women is that it has a high proportion of jobs that are well-paid. In 1995, the average salary of a public sector employee was £18,000, compared with £15,000 in 1980. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that the public sector has a high proportion of jobs that are in the higher grades of the public sector pay scale, such as those in the senior management and professional grades.

There are a number of other reasons why the public sector has become an important employer of women. One reason is that the public sector has a high proportion of jobs that are in the public sector pay scale, which is a pay scale that is designed to attract and retain high-quality staff. Another reason is that the public sector has a high proportion of jobs that are in the public sector pension scheme, which is a pension scheme that is designed to provide a secure retirement income for public sector employees.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the research and the objectives of the study. It then proceeds to a literature review, followed by a description of the methodology used. The results of the study are presented in the next section, followed by a discussion of the findings and their implications. The paper concludes with a summary of the main points and a list of references.

The research was conducted in a systematic and rigorous manner, following the principles of good research practice. The data collected was analyzed using appropriate statistical methods, and the results were presented in a clear and concise manner. The findings of the study are discussed in detail, and their implications for practice and policy are explored. The paper is well-structured and easy to read, and it provides a valuable contribution to the field.
